The Review

Dennis Becker presents a not only a solid but a very simple plan, based on his experience on how to earn a steady $5 Bucks A Day in his 79 page report. Mr. Becker addresses the problem of making either no income at all or just occasional income from Internet Marketing. He addresses this problem by saying that the lack of cash flow affects your relationships because when you're new to Internet Marketing and don't start making any money right away, the narrow-minded beliefs of your loved ones start to pop its ugly head when you spend more money than you make. They say that Internet Marketing is a scam. Dennis provides a solution to this problem by showing you how to put the fundamentals into overdrive so you can make a steady and substantial income.

The reason why Dennis Becker named his report $5 Bucks a Day is because he wants you to start small. In his chapter The Ah-Ha Moment, he identifies one of the most critical mistakes that Internet Marketers make. That mistake is that most would-be successful Internet Marketers make the mistake of going for the kill and they wind up being killed. I have found two pieces of supporting evidence that support Mr. Becker's reasoning wanting you to start small.

The first piece of evidence is inside the book he mentions an example of some guru claiming to make $1,000 dollars from a single email. The second piece of supporting evidence is in Robert Kiyosaki's The Cashflow Quadrant. On page 186 In Robert Kiyosaki's the Cashflow Quadrant, Robert talks about a guy he recommended when it comes to the subject of goal setting named Raymond Aaron. Robert said that Raymond suggest being an underachiever instead of an overachiever. I'm sure that most people would say that $5 Bucks a Day would be an underachiever status. The key here is to adjust your attitude and instead of looking at $5 A Day with a negative approach, it would be best to look at $5 A Day as a way to earn steady income. Which one is better? Making $1000 from one email one time only or a $5 a day steady? There are 365 days in a year (sometimes 366 every four years due to leap year). Making $1,825-$2,190 a year sure beats that $1,000 from one email. Even though $5 A Day is a trivial success; it provides positive reinforcement to your subconscious mind whereas the $1,000 example makes people focus on their past successes.

Dennis puts his soul and sincerity into his writing with an example when describing his personal experience in attempting to earn income from Internet Marketing. He was failing simultaneously not only with his Internet business but also his merchandise business. He mentioned that in his heart that proceeding with caution would be the best solution when in a tight crunch. Proceeding with caution means getting a job which means you have to deal with the boss. This makes you stop and visualize a feeling of inadequacy when he mentions the idea of having to negotiate in the job market. Most people quit trying new things and stick with what they know and in many cases that's the JOB (Just over Broke).

Dennis also goes against the prevalent saying in the Internet Marketing industry and that's "The Money Is in the List". That is true but also vague in a way because when the guru's said it, they didn't specify which list. They told the truth and left you there with a state of confusion. What they mean by "The Money Is in the List" is names and email addresses through leads that you generate yourself. Dennis Becker didn't dispute what the gurus said. He said the money is in the project list. In other words brainstorming on ideas that can help you make $5 Bucks A Day. He recommends coming up with ideas off the top of your head for a minimum of 120 minutes far away from those focus bandits. Which do you think is easier to do? Build a project list or a list such as what the gurus are talking about? A project list would be the easier route.

Dennis Becker's ideas in this $5 Bucks a Day report isn't new or sexy. In this e-book, he presents 22 simple yet profitable ideas. These profitable ideas can be acted upon if a person masters the 2 Controlling Influences in their life and follows the 7 steps that Dennis provides in this report which is the premise of the $ 5 Bucks A Day Strategy.

Also a person is not just limited to these ideas. In this report you may have heard of some of these ideas but have you heard of that saying "We all Need an Education in The Obvious.?" Wendell Oliver Homes deserves the credit for this quote. Joe Vitale said it best in his book the Attractor Factor, "The ego gets a big rush out of struggle." In other words some of these ideas are so simple that's its too unreal. When humans feel something isn't real, we make things harder than they have to be.

Dennis provides the best of both worlds in his report by combining the subject of self-improvement with business ideas. I'm talking about self-improvement in terms of writing out intentions for which they are the foundation to accomplish Internet Marketing success.

Dennis provides the resources that helped him along his path of success and there's a technique that he talks about frequently that allows you to use leverage if you're using pay per click advertising. The categories of resources include e-books, context ads, affiliate networks, website builders and more.

The 5 Bucks a Day Strategy is a solid plan but one that requires you to get off your butt. If you don't get off your butt, then nothing will happen. Look at Internet Marketing with a tough love approach.

One Thing to Know

Dennis Becker has two versions of $5 Bucks A Day. One is called \$5 Bucks a Day Jr and the regular version. I've spoke with Dennis over the phone to find out the difference between the junior and the senior version. The difference between the junior and the senior version is that it's the exact same information in both reports except that there are bonuses included in the senior version and access to Dennis's forum for free. Therefore trying to save money in this approach will cost your more. The $5 Bucks a Day Jr report is $7.77 and the full version is $47. I thought that it was imperative for my subscribers to know that.
